Historical Sketch of Liddesdale

LIDDESDALE SCOTLAND is the much contested district of the border and forms the wedge-like termination of Roxburghshire, running a little into Dumfriesshire. Thomas Wake claiming Liddesdale caused a long border warfare in 1566.

Liddesdale belonged to the crown and the most notable of its fortresses or Peel Towers is the Castle Hermitage, where Queen Mary visited Bothwell in 1566. Hermitage Castle is said to have been built by Lord Nicholas de Sules about the year 1244, who then owned all of Liddesdale.

This castle is the best existing example of a border fortress in Scotland. Its remote position in the midst of a stretch of desolate country and on the edge of a deep morass bears out the grim character of the tales associated with it.

The Sules family forfeited their estate in 1320 and Hermitage went to the Grahams' and then by the marriage of Mary Graham, to the Knight of Liddesdale, William Douglass.

In 1492 Patric Hepburn, first Earl of Bothwell, exchanged Bothwell Castle on the Clyde, for Hermitage and Liddesdale. On the forfeiture of Francis Stewart, the last Earl of Bothwell, Hermitage went by grant to the Earl of Buccleuch, and is still owned by his descendants.

Not far from Liddesdale, was fought the battle of Flodden Field where on September 9, 1513, so many Scotsmen perished.

The ancient name of the river was Lid. The modern name of Liddle or Liddal includes both the name of the stream and the dale or del through which it flows. The addition of dale to Liddel, is a pleonasm, del and dale meaning the same. However, the name Liddle, Lyddel as applied to the river appears to have been established by the year 1250 or possibly earlier, though the ancient name sometimes appears much later. As an illustration, Jeffrey quotes Drummond of Hawthornden as singing of "The Lid with curled streams."

The manner of spelling the valley's name varied so much in different localities and epochs of history that the derivatives are bewildering. The spellings most frequently found are, Liddisdaill, Lyddesdale, Liddersdail, Liddisdale, etc., Liddesdale being the present established form.

Documents have not been found recording the direct line of lineage from the family of Lord Sules to the Liddle ancestry, but in A. Jeffrey's History of Roxburghshire, Vol. IV, is recorded a Randolph de Sules of the family of Lydal, who was made Provost of Roxburgh in 1296. That family of Sules Lords, as they were named Sules, built Hermitage Castle and were later Lords of Liddesdale. These Sules Lords are buried in a small enclosure beside Hermitage Castle.

It is hardly disputable that the Liddles are other than a branch of this Lydal family of Randolph de Sules, because both the names Liddle and Liddesdale have undergone many different forms of spelling since the thirteenth century. In official records and historical documents there are numerous instances where the same parcel of land or family name is referred to with a variation in spelling. In Vol. IV, History of Roxburghshire, Jeffrey also records a Richard de Sules whose family name was Lydal marrying in 1279 a Muriel Lobdel of Robertson. This town is about two miles from New Castleton, and it was here that John and Robert Liddle, first recorded in this book, were born.

Lord William Sules's reputation for brutality was even in that rough age such that he was commonly looked upon as inhuman. The people on his Liddesdale estate were constantly petitioning for relief from his acts of barbarism until one day, tired out with the never-ending complaints, King Alexander III exclaimed, "Oh boil him if you wish but let me hear no more of him!" It was a literal age, the King was taken at his word and the suggestion thus given was cheerfully followed. Lord Sules wrapped in a sheet of lead was carried by his own people to a spot called the "Ninestane Rig" about a mile from the Castle, Hermitage, and boiled in a huge caldron which was afterward preserved at Skelf Hill on a spot now marked by a circle of stones.

Chronicles of Ettrick Forest"

Constable of Edinburgh, 1886, for David Douglas.
Chapter v. 1329 to 1488.

for 1456, as follows:*

"Remission of rent for one steading was granted to Thomas Cranstoun of that ilk, as bailie of the forest; Sir Walter Scot, as master ranger of Ettrick; William Middelmest, as master ranger of Yarrow; Robert Lidale, as ranger of Yarrow; George Pringil, as master ranger of Tweed, and David Pringil, as ranger of Tweed."

quoted from
"Other Items of Discharge"

"To Mr. Richard Forbes, when comptroller, per Robert Liddale, ranger of Yarrow, toward the expense of the king's household and the wages of his various servants."

quoted from page 106, as follows:

"In 1476 The Sheriff of Selkirk was ordered to see that one
Quintin Hog fulfilled an appointment; and next year Master
George Liddale—probably a relative of the ranger of Yarrow—appears in a charter as Rector of the Forest," etc.

*Quoted from records of Court of Justiciary at Selkirk before Lord Gray, etc. 17th, 18th, 19th, November, 1502
Saturday, 19th.*

"Remission of James Davidson in Quhitmerhall for art and part of theft of a horse, a bonnet (pelei) a tepe and a sword from Robert Liddale at the time of his slaughter. Ralf Ker of Prymsydloch—surety, the said James Davidson should underly the law at the next 'aire' of Selkirk, for art and part of the cruel slaughter of Robert Liddale," etc.

IN 1727, Sir John Liddle owned an estate near that of Sir William Johnstone's, Westerhall, Langholm, Scotland, and it is likely that this estate is the tract associated with the tale handed down of a grant having been lost to the family of Liddles, resultant from numerous border insurrections at that time.

It is related that the title to an old Scottish estate was in dispute and that the contending Liddle heirs had collected the necessary records and proofs of inheritance to establish their claim indisputably.

The courier with the documents was traveling on horseback through a wild and rugged section to the country to present the credentials to the proper authorities when he was murdered, the documents stolen and his body thrown into a well where it was later discovered. All evidence indicated that the deed had been committed by an employee of the rival claimant, who was later adjudged the entitled heir by the courts.

It seems probable that Sir John Liddle who owned the above estate in 1727 was the father of Robert and John Liddle, our first American ancestors, because their birth dates of 1741 and 1748 respectively correspond with the period when Sir John would be rearing his family. This is further substantiated by the fact that they lived on the same grant of land and bore the same Christian name. There was trouble in Scotland over property at the time Robert and John came to America and according to facts or tales, handed down to the present generation, from father to son, it was the cause of their emigration.

Lord Sules

*On a circle of stones they placed the pot,
A circle of stones but barely nine;
And heated it red and fiery hot,
Till burnished brass and glimmering sheen.
They rolled him up in a sheet of lead,
A sheet of lead for a funeral pall,
And plunged him into the caldron red,
And melted him, lead and bones and all.
On Skelf Hill the caldron still
The men of Liddesdale can show.
On the spot they placed the pot
The grass nor harebell ne'er will grow.*

Extract from Bothwell's Lament

(Part Second)

*For I was reared amidst the hills,
Within a border home.
When rushing from their rocky glens
The mountain torrents come.
Oh, Hermitage, by Liddel's side,
My old ancestral tower,
Oh, were I now but Lord of thee
Not owning half my power.
For in the days of reckless pride
I held, but cast away,
I would not leave the border keep
Until my dying day.
Who owns thee now fair Hermitage?
Who sits within thy wall?
What banners flutter in the breeze
Above that stately hall?
Does yet the court-yard ring with tramp
Of horses and of men;
Do bay of hounds and bugle-note
Sound merry from the glen?
Or art thou as thy master is,
A rent and ruined pile,
What matters it? These eyes of mine
Shall never see thee more;
Still in my thoughts thou must abide
As stately as of yore.*

First Generation

John Liddle Branch

- 1 JOHN LIDDLE, born in Roxburghshire, Scotland, November 28, 1748, came to America in 1775 with his brother Robert Liddle and family, consisting of his wife and four children, one, Betty being born on the voyage. John was not married when he left Scotland.

These brothers came from New Castleton, Liddesdale district of Roxburghshire, Scotland, situated on the Liddel River and near Sir William Johnstone's Estate "Westerhall," Langholm.

John settled in Fonda, Montgomery County, New York, while Robert settled at Princeton, Schenectady County, New York. (See Robert Liddle records.) John Liddle was married at Fonda, Montgomery County, New York, by the Pastor of the Reformed Church Reverend Thomas Romeyn, to Elizabeth Everson of Fonda, New York, May 2, 1776. She died at the age of 67. No record of her birth and no record of John Liddle's death, nor where they are buried has been found but it is believed they were buried in a private cemetery on the farm now owned by Arthur Van Epps at Fultonville, New York, which has been neglected. Some of the headstones have been plowed under, while others were thrown along the stone fence and badly broken. The author has placed a headstone in his memory at Colon, Michigan, where two of his grandsons are buried: Gilbert (7) and John Liddle (5).

He was a Revolutionary soldier and served as drummer and fifer in Captain Robert McKeen's Company of Colonel Cornelius D. Wyncoop's Regiment. His name is spelled "Liddel." (Reference: Quartermaster-General's records at Washington, D. C.) He also served as fifer in Captain Abraham Veeder's Company of Colonel Frederick Fisher's Regiment of Tryon County, New York, Militia, Mohawk district. (Reference: New York State Library.) In this company his name is spelled

JOHN LIDDLE BRANCH

"Lidel." These records were damaged in the fire of 1911, when the Library was burned.

The records of John Liddle and Elizabeth Everson, the baptism of their children, the marriage of John Liddle, Jr. and Elizabeth Van Deusen, and the baptism of their children, were kindly furnished by Mrs. William Van Deusen of Fonda, New York, who copied them from the Reformed Church records.

The data of the Adam Liddle records was not received until the arrangement of the John Liddle, Jr. (2) genealogy was compiled. Therefore the record of the Adam genealogy is compiled separately. Adam and John Jr. were brothers.

Children of John Liddle and Elizabeth Everson Liddle all born in Fonda, Montgomery County, New York:

- 1A JANNETTE LIDDLE, born November 28, 1778.
- 2 JOHN LIDDLE, JR., born October 15, 1780. Baptized November 12, 1780, by Reverend Thomas Romeyn. Witnesses: John Vrooman and Engeltje (Adaline) Collier. The family Bible records his birth October 18, 1780, but does not mention the baptism.
- 2A HUGH LIDDLE, born December 11, 1782.
- 3 ADAM LIDDLE, born April 2, 1785. Baptized April 22 by Reverend Thomas Romeyn. The Bible records his birth April 22, 1785. Married October 5, 1817, to Melinda Myra Von Crapsey, who was born August 12, 1794, and died November 18, 1866. Adam died October 11, 1877. Both buried at West Shelby, Orleans County, New York. For further reference see Adam Liddle records in this volume.
- 3A MARGARET LIDDLE, born November 7, 1787.
- 3B JACOB LIDDLE, born September 18, 1791. Died young, date unknown.
- 3C DAVID LIDDLE, born July 15, 1793. David had a son William and daughter Jane.
- 4 JACOB LIDDLE, born November 20, 1795.
- 4A NANCY LIDDLE, born August 18, 1798.
- 4B WILLIAM LIDDLE, born July 26, 1801. Bible record year 1800. He returned to Glasgow, Scotland.

Second Generation

John Liddle Branch

JOHN LIDDLE, JR. (2), born Fonda, New York, October 15th or 18th. Baptized there November 12, 1780, by Thomas Romeyn, Pastor of the Reformed Church. Witnesses: John Vrooman and Engeltje (Adaline) Collier. He was married in Fonda, December 20, 1800, to Elizabeth Van Deusen, who was born at Fonda, New York, November 22, 1779, and baptized at Fonda, December 19, 1779, by Reverend Thomas Romeyn.

His wife was the daughter of Gilbert Van Deusen and Nellie Van Antwerp of Johnstown, New York. Gilbert Van Deusen and wife, Nellie Van Antwerp, were first buried at Fultonville, New York, but were removed later and buried in the new part of Greenwood Cemetery, Fonda, New York, on the lot of their grand-daughter, Sarah Caroline Van Deusen Feltis; daughter of Simon Van Deusen and Mary Zimmerman, his wife, who are also buried on same lot.

Gilbert Van Deusen was a Revolutionary soldier and served as sergeant in Captain Garret Putman's Company of Colonel Frederick Fisher's regiment of Tryon County Militia. His certificate number is No. 32720. Gilbert and John Liddle (1) served in the same regiment.

JOHN LIDDLE, JR., resided near Fonda, New York, until about 1823 or 1824 when he took up his residence at Hastings, Oswego County, New York. Elizabeth Van Deusen Liddle, his wife, died Saturday, December 21, 1825. Children 5-13. He died September 26, 1828 and was buried beside his first wife at La Fayette, New York, on the lot of their son Moses. His second marriage was to Miss Newcoln of Syracuse, New York.
